Facts for migrants

There's a new website with reliable information about migration to Europe and Germany: www.rumoursaboutgermany.info

Do you think about leaving for Europe? Are you already on your way? Or have you made it to Germany but you need to go back? You probably have a lot of questions. You heard a lot of rumours.

Like: Does your nationality grant you a right to asylum? Will the German government give you a job and a welcome payment? Is there help to return home voluntarily?

Correct answers are often hard to get. There are many rumours floating around. Groups on Facebook and WhatsApp are full of them. People smugglers often spread false information because they only care about your money, not about you. Don't trust people smugglers!

Now there is an alternative: Germany has launched an info website at www.rumoursaboutgermany.info. It has all the facts you need to make informed decisions. All information has been provided by experts on migration. The website is available in English, French and Arabic and it's optimised for your smartphone. New posts and real-life testimonials of irregular migrants will be added continuously to provide up-to-date information on legal matters, political decisions and current rumours. Migrants need facts, not #RumoursAboutGermany.
